

Who is Feed My Starving Children?

A Christian non-profit founded in 1987, Feed My Starving Children equips people to turn hunger into hope with their own two hands.

We invite volunteers to pack MannaPack™ meals, scientifically developed to reverse and prevent malnutrition. Then we donate the food to selected missions and humanitarian agencies worldwide who use it to operate orphanages, schools, health care facilities, community feeding programs, and other interventions in poverty.

Rescued from hunger and its risks—including stunted development, ill health, slavery, and even an early death—children can develop healthy bodies. They can go to school, earn a living, and bring prosperity to their families, communities, and nations.

Hunger becomes hope. And it starts with food.

How We Work

Donor-volunteers hand-pack three nutritious formulas.

We pray over all pallets at the end of each shift.

We are a faith-based charity, working in Jesus' name. But we welcome all people to pack and receive our food without regard to faith. We partner regularly with churches as well as civic groups, businesses, and public schools.

Our mission:

Feeding God's starving children, hungry in body and spirit.

Among hunger charities, FMSC is unique in five ways:

1. Christian mission
2. Scientifically-developed meal formulas
3. Meal production by volunteers
4. Network of embedded distribution partners
5. Nutritious meals that enable sustainable progress

Schools

Orphanages

Feeding Centers in Churches & Communities

Health Clinics

We give the meals to selected missions and non-governmental organizations, who pay for shipping. They distribute the food to smaller, in-country partners working in their own cultures to help children and develop communities.
